

Short summer-report – August 2023 – by Peter Hesse.

Nature and our humanity face dramatic changes. –
Global power-structures are becoming visibly unclear.
Majorities suffer from egocentrism, from stoneage minds.
Climate change affects all of us. We need to adjust to it.
As individuals we are powerless – but we can develop survival-views, empathy, solidarity and LOVE in action.
The Peter-Hesse-Foundation is effective beyond Haiti. –

Our life as a couple changes, as required by progressing age and respecting physical limits – still allowing ourselves two nostalgic trips together: 1.) first time Tel Aviv, learning how to enjoy life while permanently enduring life threats – 2.) Iceland, with a population surviving volcano-eruptions, living with mystic traditions, however celebrating creativity.

Conscious deep learning in Berlin and (on the other side)
the experience during a big cruise across the Eastern sea sadly presented „linear“ lives with no inner engagement in our world's reality and avoiding any wider consciousness.
For me, such learning experiences ended my efforts to convince co-thinkers with traditional means, like books.
This was also the end of my think-tank "DENKTEAM".

Leaving France – with the financial future of the Peter-Hesse-Foundation in mind – selling my two apartments in France in times of CORONA – due to 70 % of inheritance-tax for not having children – was the beginning of radical personal change. More was to be readjusted:
My wife Isa is still young enough to be accepted in a quality home for elderly people. My age, 86, already proved too old.
We therefore decided to firmly reserve two rooms in a good location outside Düsseldorf. We will stay together anyway.

Peter – also in the name of Isa.
